Evaluation Programme 2021–2022

Evaluation is an important instrument for an effective development policy. While different parts of the Norwegian development aid administration are responsible for reporting the results of individual aid interventions, the Evaluation Department has a particular responsibility for documenting the degree to which Norwegian development assistance is effective, relevant, and achieves the expected results.

The department is governed under a separate mandate and reports directly to the Secretaries General of the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Norwegian Ministry of Climate and Environment. The work of the department is carried out according to the principles described below.

Evaluations shall:

- be conducted independently of those who are responsible for the administration and implementation of programmes and projects;
- be conducted in accordance with recognised professional evaluation methods and principles;
- seek to elucidate relevant issues;
- put forward operational recommendations that may be utilised in the preparation of budgets and in further development of the activity being evaluated;
- contribute to a constructive and open debate.

The programme may be adjusted based on changes in needs and preconditions. The programme and the status of planned and ongoing evaluations can be found on our webpages at www.norad.no/en/front/evaluation/.

About the programme

Independence, credibility and usability are fundamental principles for evaluation work. To ensure independence and credibility, the work will be undertaken in accordance with recognised criteria and standards for high-quality evaluation practice.

To ensure that the evaluations will be relevant and useful, the programme has been designed in consultation with actors both inside and outside the aid administration, with an intention to identify knowledge and issues that will be relevant for the Norwegian development cooperation going forward. At the different stages of the evaluation processes, provisions are made for good interaction and dialogue with stakeholders.

In this period, the evaluation programme maintains a particular focus on private sector development, climate and environment, humanitarian assistance and assistance to fragile states and regions.

Private sector development

Development of and cooperation with the private sector is a key element in Norwegian development policy. Support to private sector development should help create jobs and provide wages to individuals and tax revenues to governments, as well as generate inclusive and sustainable economic growth. In these efforts, special challenges are associated with documentation of additionality and development effects.

Evaluation of support to the fisheries sector in Africa

Norway has supported the fisheries sector in various countries in Africa for several decades. Since 2016, this support has been administered by 'Fish for Development', one of the programmes in the Knowledge Bank in Norad. The evaluation will examine the effect of this effort in selected areas, especially marine resources management and regional collaboration, which may provide input to the work on further developing Norwegian support to this area. The evaluation will primarily be limited to looking at the Nansen programme.

(Ongoing)

Evaluation of instruments for mixed funding

This evaluation will examine instruments that can be used to mobilise commercial capital to achieve the sustainable development goals, both to assess whether these instruments are suitable and to determine whether appropriate instruments are being applied. The evaluation will seek to provide input to further development of Norwegian efforts in this area.

(Planned start-up in 2022/23)

Support to fragile states and regions

Humanitarian assistance is a prioritised area in Norwegian development policy, with a total budget of more than NOK 5.5 billion. In addition, large amounts are devoted to long-term development efforts in fragile states and regions. Key issues in this area include whether Norway is delivering on the goals and commitments that have been defined for its humanitarian efforts and whether these efforts are sufficiently rights-based.

Evaluations of Norwegian interventions in selected countries

The evaluations will assess the overall Norwegian assistance in selected countries. The country evaluations will – depending on country and context – assess issues relating to coordination of humanitarian and long-term assistance; involvement of local partners; organisation, planning and management of Norwegian development cooperation; involvement of those affected by crises; the rights-based orientation of assistance; and use of innovative instruments. These evaluations may provide input to ongoing interventions in fragile states and to the development of country strategies.

The Evaluation Department has undertaken evaluations of the Norwegian aid engagement in South Sudan in the period 2011–2018 and in Somalia in the period 2012–2018. An evaluation of the Norwegian aid engagement in the Sahel region is planned as the third in this series.

(Planned start-up in 2021/2022)

Evaluation of Norwegian efforts for women, peace and security

Norway has been a driving force internationally to advance the agenda of women, peace and security. The evaluation will map and analyse the efforts to ensure that women's participation, influence, rights and needs are safeguarded as part of peace and security work. The evaluation will aim to provide input to the preparation of a new action plan on women, peace and security for the period 2022–2025.

(Ongoing)

Evaluation of how the Norwegian development cooperation is dealing with the transition and relationship between humanitarian efforts and long-term assistance.

Norwegian development cooperation is often found within the so-called 'humanitarian nexus', which consists of humanitarian crisis assistance, peace efforts and reconciliation and long-term assistance. The evaluation will identify and analyse the Norwegian development efforts in the transitions and relationships within the different parts of the 'nexus' in order to better understand when, how and why Norwegian efforts succeed or fail. This evaluation will represent an extensive project that includes a number of components, including a case study of Norwegian support for refugees and internally displaced people in Syria and neighbouring countries.

(Planned start-up in 2021/2022)

Climate and environment

Climate and environment are increasingly important topics in Norwegian aid policy. Climate change and poor management of land and marine environments render people more vulnerable to humanitarian crises and may undermine the efforts to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals. In Norwegian development policy, climate and environment encompass topics such as forest conservation (the Norwegian International Climate and Forest Initiative (NICFI)), support for sustainable maritime resource management, climate adaptation and food production. In addition, climate and environment constitute cross-cutting issues that must be included in all development initiatives.

Study of how Norwegian support to private sector development safeguards environmental considerations

Climate and private sector development are prioritised areas for Norwegian development policy. The study will investigate whether climate and environmental considerations are safeguarded in Norwegian support to private sector development.

Evaluation of support to civil society by Norway's International Climate and Forest Initiative

Norway's International Climate and Forest Initiative (NICFI) provides support to civil society organisations through a number of different grant agreements that are administered by Norad, the Norwegian embassies and the NICFI-secretariat. The organisations that receive such support range from local indigenous peoples' organisations to international organisations with offices in numerous countries in the Global North as well as the Global South. The evaluation will examine the effects of the support to civil society in light of NICFI's objectives.

(Planned start-up in 2021)

Evaluation of Norfund with an emphasis on investments in Africa

Support to renewable energy – hydro, solar and wind power – is an important priority area for Norwegian development assistance. This support pursues multiple objectives, including poverty alleviation, economic growth and reduced greenhouse gas emissions. The evaluation will focus on the latter aspect, and assess the extent to which the programme for renewable energy has helped reduce emissions of greenhouse gases.

(Planned start-up in 2022)

Other evaluations

Synthesis studies of development assistance evaluations in partner countries

The efforts to systemise existing evaluation knowledge for Norway's partner countries began in 2016. To date, Country Evaluation Briefs have been completed for 17 partner countries. A study of the Democratic Republic of Congo will be carried out during the programme period. These studies are of particular relevance for the work to develop country strategies.

(Ongoing)

Study: Assessment of the quality of decentralised evaluations in the Norwegian development aid administration

Over a three-year period, the Evaluation Department will undertake quality assessments of the reviews and decentralised evaluations that have been conducted by the Norwegian development aid administration. Annual reports of the compiled assessments and of the most important knowledge generated from these evaluations will be released in 2020, 2021 and 2022. These studies will be important in contributing to the efforts to improve the quality of the decentralised evaluations.

(Ongoing)

Evaluation of the efforts to include persons with disabilities in Norwegian development assistance

This evaluation will document and assess the efforts to include persons with disabilities in Norwegian development assistance in the period 2012–2020. Inclusion of persons with disabilities is a priority area for development assistance, and a new inclusion strategy is currently in the making. The evaluation will provide a knowledge base for how aid funds can be used in a good way to promote inclusion and provide an important input to the strategy development process.

(Planned start-up in 2021)

Study: Mapping the use of development assistance funds from various ministries

In addition to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Climate and Environment, several other ministries administer development assistance funds. This mapping study will identify the ministries that use/administer development assistance funds, the budgets to which the costs are assigned, the purpose of the development assistance and those who are responsible for documenting the development effects of the funds.

(Ongoing)

Evaluation of long-term effects

The evaluation will assess the long-term effects of Norwegian development assistance in an area where Norway has had a long-term engagement, and seek to identify where lessons can be learned with a view to future efforts and initiatives. This is currently planned as a large-scale study that will focus on a set of long-term effects that are fundamental to sustainable development, such as economic development and democracy, and that have been a high priority in Norwegian development cooperation over a long period of time.

(Planned start-up in 2022)

Evaluation of selected programmes in the Knowledge Bank

The Knowledge Bank in Norad will strengthen the capacity and institutions in various sectors in Norway's partner countries. The Evaluation Department will carry out evaluations of selected development programmes in the Knowledge Bank with a view to providing important input to the ongoing work in the relevant areas. The evaluations will identify the results of the efforts and assess the approach to knowledge transfer and institution building. In the first instance, we will take a closer look at the support to the fisheries sector in Southern Africa, which will be particularly relevant for the work with the Oceans for Development programme. (See the information on this at the start of the programme).

Aid channels and partners

A large proportion of Norwegian development assistance is channelled through multilateral organisations and funds, as well as civil society organisations.

Real-time evaluation of the UN COVID-19 Response and Recovery Multi-Partner Trust Fund

Norway has taken the initiative to establish a new UN Fund (United Nations COVID-19 Response and Recovery Multi-Partner Trust Fund) aimed at ensuring a coordinated UN effort to help countries overcome the ramifications of the COVID-19 pandemic. The real-time evaluation will focus on the Fund's relevance, design and operation. The purpose of the evaluation is to provide continuous recommendations on optimum adaptation of the Fund, as well as to measure results at country level where these are available. The real-time evaluation will be carried out in collaboration with the Executive Office of the Secretary General of the UN. The intention is for the evaluation to be carried out in close collaboration with the member states in order to promote participation and ownership from the Global South. (Planned start-up is 2021/2022)

Evaluation of vaccination assistance

The equitable distribution of COVID-19 vaccines is one of Norway's most important measures for combatting the repercussions of the pandemic in developing countries. Norway's role, in addition to providing significant funds for vaccine procurement, is to drive the global collaboration to facilitate access to vaccines, test equipment and medicines in developing countries. The Evaluation Department is planning an evaluation of this investment and wishes to assess results after three years. The evaluation process will be divided into different phases in which data will be collected in several rounds to ensure a good basis for assessment after three years.

(Planned start-up is 2022/2023)

Other ongoing activities

Partnership agreements with evaluation offices in multilateral organisations

The Evaluation Department engages in ongoing partnership agreements with evaluation offices in selected multilateral organisations. The purpose of the cooperation is to help develop evaluation capacity and promote learning. This will be achieved through support for development of technical expertise, collaboration on evaluations and joint dissemination activities. Going forward, this work will concentrate on the independent evaluation units in the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), the Global Environment Fund (GEF), the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) and the African Development Bank.

Evaluation capacity development

The Evaluation Department collaborates closely with the evaluation networks in OECD/DAC, the development banks and the UN organisations. These efforts include strengthening of the capacity and quality of the evaluation work and peer reviews of the evaluation activities undertaken by these organisations.

Dissemination of knowledge in relevant thematic areas

In collaboration with Norad's Section for Research, Innovation and Higher Education, the Evaluation Department will make provisions for the dissemination of relevant evaluation and research-based knowledge in selected areas, in connection with the planning and development of thematic priorities in development policy.
